

Poem 1:

I stare in disbelief
Everyone's hearts instantly full with grief
My body goes numb
I remember thinking what has our world become

The sky went silent
As the streets turned violent
All I felt was sorrow
Would these people even see tomorrow?

There aren't any words to explain
There aren't any actions to ease the pain
So many people left to stand Remembering our losses throughout the land

There is not a smile great enough not a hug strong enough no words meaningful enough

Thank you to all the men and women that ran into the burning towers that steered the planes away that risk their lives for us the day of September 11th

You will never be forgotten
We have remembered you for 18 years
And we will remember you for 18,000 more
